ONE-HUNDRED-TWENTY-EIGHTH - coach modification – LAMINATE FLOORING IN THE BEDROOM. After five years the bedroom carpet was beginning to look a little used, especially where the bottom of the bed box dug across the carpet when the bed retracted.

After looking thru the photos, decided to skip showing photos of bed, mattress, bed board, hinge and top board. Rather the photo shows the results of disassembly of those items. Next item to be removed was the portion of bed box covering the carpet under the bed. After we got to this part the work began as there was no turning back after the carpet was cut into pieces for removal. After the carpet had been removed we discovered where water had leaked past the DS slide gasket and ran onto the flooring causing a small area of mildew to grow. After treating the area the next work was to remove the 1/2" of grout on top of the OSB near the hall. An area of about 6 square feet took many hours, working with an oscillating saw, belt sander, along with a chisel and hammer to remove the excess grout making a smooth surface.

After removing the grout, locating and pulling all of the carpet staples we were left with a smooth surface for laying a thick underlayment making for a quite floor.

Over a period of a couple of years we replaced all of the carpet in our home about 1,400 square feet with laminate flooring. We like the laminate flooring so well we decided to replace the coach bedroom carpet with the same flooring. The flooring is a 14.3 mm thick laminate purchased from Sam's Club by the name Canyon Oak.

Total square footage was a little over 61 Sq. Ft. Ripping out the old carpet and padding, cleaning everything off the OSB flooring, installing underlayment and the new laminate turned into a really loooong two day project.
